Man arrested after woman's throat slashed

Orleans. The 18-year-old suspect was arrested by officers on the front lawn of a house on Esprit Drive

Residents of a calm Orleans neighbourhood were shaken to see a dramatic police take-down of a suspect on Esprit Drive Tuesday, just around the corner from a home where a 49-year-old woman's body was found.

Paramedics and police responded to 634 St. Bruno St. just after 1 p.m. to investigate what they first called a "suspicious medical call."

Communications from first responders indicated the victim was found without vital signs and had her throat slashed.

At about 3:15 p.m., several Ottawa police cruisers with their lights flashing raced through adjacent streets before officers arrested an 18-year-old suspect on the front lawn of a house on Esprit Drive. No charges have been laid and police have not released his identity or that of the victim until the next of kin have been notified.

He wore pyjama pants and a rain-soaked T-shirt and was crying as police pinned him down to the ground. Police then took him away in a police vehicle to be questioned.

The owner of the house on Esprit Drive, who did not give her name, said she knew about the police investigation when she saw the young man near her home.

"I saw him running on the side of my house," she said. "Yes, I was scared."

Jay Sanko, another neighbour, saw the arrest unfold from his second storey window. He said it's a "disturbing" incident in what he describes as a good community.

"It's not something that normally happens in this neighbourhood," he said.

The case is Ottawa's second homicide of 2014.

Police charge Quyon man with murder of estranged wife

Defence lawyer Mendo Marino tells reporters his client, Alain Gascon, is "overwhelmed by events." Gascon was charged with first-degree murder Tuesday in the death of Angela Distasio. LUCY SCHOLEY/METRO

Separated few weeks ago. Couple had five children together

A Quyon man is facing a first-degree murder charge in the death of his wife, Angela Distasio, from whom he recently separated.

Alain Gascon, 49, briefly appeared in court on Tuesday. He is still in custody and is prohibited from contacting several people, including his five children. He has yet to enter a plea.

Wearing a T-shirt and black pants, he surveyed the courtroom and laid eyes on Distasio's family members. He is short, portly and has a moustache.

Distasio, 42, was found badly injured at 45 rue Symmes on Sunday and Gascon was taken into custody that night. Distasio later died in hospital.

Defence lawyer Mendo Marino said he spoke with a crying Gascon Tuesday morning.

"He was overwhelmed by the events," said Marino, adding that he's hoping to contact family members himself for more details of the case and to collect Gascon's clothing and medication.

Crown lawyer Sylvain Petitclerc said Gascon and Distasio had been married and had five children, but separated "a couple of weeks ago." She was living in the Aylmer apartment where she was found.

Police are investigating two addresses and Petitclerc said there could be additional locations.

Janick Fontaine, spokesperson for the sept maisons d'aide et d'hébergement en Outaouais (a women's shelter), said this was "another sad case" of domestic violence, which she described as a "societal problem." She said the Gatineau region has the third-highest incidents of domestic violence in Quebec.

Gatineau police say this is the third homicide in the city this year.

Gascon has a lengthy criminal record that dates back to 1986. He's due to appear in court May 1.

'Stop the crap' going into Ottawa River: MP

Ottawa MP Paul Dewar spent Earth Day down at the beach.

He didn't have board shorts and sandals on, but the NDP MP was shielded by an umbrella as he called on the federal and provincial governments "to stop the crap" from flowing into the Ottawa River.

"It's important for recreation, but it's also the source of drinking water for a million people," said Dewar during a press conference at Westboro Beach Tuesday morning.

"When people realize that there is raw sewage going into the river that we also use for our drinking water, it rightly causes concern and alarm."

Specifically, Dewar is asking the feds and the province to chip in $65 million each to finish the reservoir project that would hold back any overflow from entering the river. Dewar said the project is about 65 per cent finished, but added that it needs federal and provincial help to get it done.

Dewar is also pressuring the Conservatives to designate the Ottawa River as a heritage river to protect it from development and to promote the city and region as a place with a historic waterway. He said the designation is just a stamp away.

"It's sitting on the desk of the Conservatives," Dewar told Metro. "Everything has been done, all the work has been done, all they have to do is proclaim it."

Province set to launch Canada's first eco district

Downtown Ottawa.
New initiative modelled after existing neighbourhoods in U.S. cities like Portland

 JOE LOFARO
joe.lofaro@metronews.ca

A new, not-for-profit organization is launching in Ottawa's downtown core what is being dubbed Canada's first eco district — a project the group hopes will make Ottawa's core more attractive, walkable and sustainable.

The Ontario Trillium Foundation announced Tuesday it will provide the Ottawa Centre EcoDistrict with a $199,600 grant to be spread out over three years to help get the project started.

Don Grant, executive director, said he already has some plans in mind to revitalize the downtown area, such as hooking up non-government buildings to the federal government's district energy system to save on energy costs and making the district a more electric-car friendly space.

"If we focus on the green, we're not going to be successful," said Grant at the launch at Hub Ottawa headquarters on Bank Street. "We've done the green thing really well. We need to do the green neighbourhood thing."

The new initiative is modelled after existing eco districts in other U.S. cities like Portland, Washington and Boston.

For Ottawa, Grant wants business owners to think about what makes people want to come downtown and make it more lively. The vacancy rate has jumped to 15 per cent in the downtown core in recent years, Grant said, so the goal is to give businesses and residents a good reason to come back.

"This is going to make our downtown one of the most attractive places to do business in all of Canada, but also for people to live," said Ottawa Centre MPP Yasir Naqvi of the project.

Ontario Energy Minister Bob Chiarelli applauded Grant's vision for Ottawa's downtown core, saying, "Conservation is the cleanest and cheapest energy resource that offers consumers a way to reduce their electricity bills."

Worship at the altar of Gerald Trottier's life's work at the OAG

 LUCY SCHOLEY

The late Gerald Trottier sometimes used a brush, a pencil, an inked thumb or even a coffee stain to paint a picture of religion.

The Ottawa artist's eclectic collection had been sitting in storage since he died 10 years ago. But now, a large portion of his work will be revived on the walls of the Ottawa Art Gallery (OAG). It's the gallery's largest single-artist donation to date, with 102 newly acquired pieces over Trottier's lifetime.

Also included in the OAG collection are Trottier's well-known Easter Paintings from the 1980s — a series representing a more dramatic, dark perspective on religion. Trottier suffered from Alzheimer's in his latter art years of the 1990s. In painting self-portraits — some as big as six-feet-tall — his work came "full-circle," said OAG curator Catherine Sinclair.

"We're adding a huge missing part to the story of Ottawa visual arts," she said. "Trottier was such a central part to the growth of the visual arts scene in Ottawa. It's imperative that he would be represented in our collection in this way."

Currently overflowing with art in the tiny space, the OAG will be able to accept more donations when it opens doors in its new, expanded space in 2017.

The launch of Trottier's exhibit will be April 24 at 5:30 p.m. at the Ottawa Art Gallery, at 2 Daly Ave.

Study shows women best off in Quebec

For the most equal wages and more female politicians, a new analysis suggests it's better to be a woman in Quebec City — not Edmonton.

But no matter where you live, the report by the Canadian Centre for Policy Alternatives shows when it comes to violence against women and female leadership opportunities Canada still has a long way to go.

"It's not enough to just work in one area," said the report's author, senior CCPA researcher Kate McInturff. "For women to be successful professionally, for them to be leaders ... they also need to have personal security, economic security."

The report ranks the largest 20 cities based on economic security, leadership, health, personal security, and education.

Quebec comes out ahead with Quebec City, Montreal and Sherbrooke in the top 10; a fact McInturff attributes to family-friendly policies like cheaper daycare.

"It allows women and men to have equal levels of flexibility at work," she said.

The big three — Montreal, Toronto and Vancouver — are all middle of the pack, while women in Alberta fare the worst; Calgary and Edmonton are ranked 17th and 20th respectively.

But McInturff says the positives — for example, women in Quebec City earn an average of 78 per cent of what their male counterparts make, well above the national average — are accompanied by less heartening statistics.

Designer Laura Siegel arranges scarves made from recycled saris for her Project Eleven27 at the Toronto Fashion Incubator in Toronto on Monday. Weaving change for workers, one scarf at a time

One-year anniversary of tragedy. Canadian designer's Project Eleven27 honours victims of Bangladesh factory collapse

Seeing images emerge from the world's worst garment industry accident hit Laura Siegel hard — then led her to take action.

The award-winning Canadian designer has partnered with artisans in India on Project Eleven27, creating a collection of 1,127 scarves — one for each victim of the fatal building collapse in Bangladesh.

The April 24, 2013, tragedy at the illegally constructed Rana Plaza brought worldwide attention to the poor conditions endured by workers and renewed focus on the production practices used to create affordable goods.

"Being overseas and having visited a ton of factories at all different levels, I understand how that happened. And it was just sad because I felt that like it's something that almost could have been prevented if something was just done about it," said Siegel in an interview at the Toronto Fashion Incubator, a non-profit, small business centre that offers support and mentorship to budding home-grown designers and entrepreneurs.

Siegel, 26, spent a lot of time when she was younger travelling to developing countries, and has had the opportunity to do knitwear while in Peru and Bolivia where she learned of the passion for craft among the artisans.

"When I met individuals that were sustaining their culture that probably existed exactly the same way 1,000 years ago, (it) is just such a rare special moment," she said. "So I wanted to figure out a way for them to be able to continue to sustain what they're doing, but also to be able to continue relationships and connections with these people while designing — doing what I love — and supporting what they do."

To that end, Siegel's ready-to-wear womenswear label collaborates with artisans in rural villages around the world to help sustain craft — also a primary focus of Project Eleven27.

For the initiative, recycled saris sourced in Kutch, India, are laser-cut in Delhi and made into a yarn that's brought back to Kutch. Namori Vankar and his family then weave the brightly coloured saris into the scarves, which are a 50 per cent cotton, 50 per cent silk blend.

"Being able to sustain their craft, being able to continue their work is very special, especially in that region where a lot of people are forced to leave something that they've been practising in their families for so many centuries," said Siegel.

THE CANADIAN PRESS

How you can help

The 22-inch scarf retails for $135, while the 38-inch scarf — which can double as a sarong or wrap — sells for $195. The scarves will be available through Siegel's online boutique, luxury retailer Holt Renfrew and online retailers Shop Latitude and Shop Ethica.

- Project Eleven27 will be donating 25 per cent of proceeds to Sreepur Village, an organization in Bangladesh helping the families affected by the tragedy. To commemorate the one-year anniversary of the Rana Plaza disaster this Thursday, 40 per cent of sales of the scarves sold on that day will benefit the charity.

A third of adults suffered child abuse: Survey

The data. It cannot prove cause and effect; it can only point to possible links

A new study says one in three adult Canadians suffered some form of child abuse in their past, adding this abuse is associated with a higher risk of mental health disorders later in life.

The lead author of the study says it provides the first national look at the prevalence of child abuse experienced by Canadian adults.

Tracie Afifi of the University of Manitoba says previous estimates were based on a nearly 25-year-old study from Ontario and more recent data from Quebec.

The study is published today in the Canadian Medical Association Journal. The authors studied data collected from more than 23,000 adults 18 and older who took part in Statistic Canada's 2012 Canadian Community Health Survey.

Respondents were asked questions about whether they were hit or subjected to other forms of physical or sexual abuse in childhood, or whether they were exposed to violence between the adults in their homes.

One in three adults reported experiences that met the criteria for at least one of the types of abuse, with physical abuse the most common of the three; 26 per cent of respondents said they had experienced physical abuse.

Ten per cent of respondents said they had experienced sexual abuse and nearly eight per cent witnessed intimate partner violence.

Heartbleed hacker. He was tempted by curiosity: Calce

A 19-year-old man accused of siphoning some 900 social insurance numbers from the Canada Revenue Agency was likely motivated by curiosity, not malice, says one of the country's most notorious hackers.

"I think he's a computer science geek who heard about a critical bug and wanted to poke around. His curiosity got the better of him," said Michael Calce.

Last week, the RCMP charged Stephen Arthur Solis-Reyes of London, Ont., with one count of unauthorized use of a computer and one count of mischief. The Western University student is believed to have used the Heartbleed bug — a vulnerability in the OpenSSL software used to secure countless websites — to extract personal information from CRA servers. The media has already dubbed Solis-Reyes "the Heartbleed hacker."

De Grood set to undergo psychiatric evaluation

'Bizarre' case. Calgary man accused of stabbing five victims at a party faces charges of first-degree murder

The father of a young man stabbed to death at a house party says his boy was the poster child for the kind of son every parent wants.

Bruce Rathwell told mourners at his son Zackariah's funeral Tuesday that the young man was athletic, artistic, loved music and spent years as a Boy Scout.

A display at the front of the Calgary chapel was a testament to the 21-year-old's interests and accomplishments. It included three guitars, a Boy Scouts uniform, rugby jersey, hockey equipment and skates.

Rathwell, a promising musician with the band Zackariah and the Prophets, was stabbed to death along with four others last week at a get-together to celebrate the end of classes.

Another party-goer, 22-year-old Matthew de Grood, is charged with five counts of first-degree murder. He appeared in court Tuesday and was ordered to undergo a 30-day assessment to determine whether he is mentally fit to stand trial.

De Grood, the son of a senior Calgary police officer, was wearing blue coveralls when he appeared in court earlier in the day via closed-circuit television.

He could be seen leaning against a wall and touching his face, with cuts and scrapes from when the canine unit took him down during his arrest.

The accused will return to court May 22. He will continue to be held at the Southern Alberta Forensic Psychiatry Centre, where he's been since his arrest. The Crown requested the assessment on the recommendation of a doctor who has been dealing with de Grood.

"The case has been adjourned for a period of 30 days to allow a psychiatrist to assess whether or not the accused is fit to stand trial," Crown prosecutor Stephanie Brown told reporters.

De Grood's lawyer, Allan Fay, said he's not ruling out a defence of not criminally responsible. "I'd be foolish to overlook any possibility, especially in a case that on its face is as bizarre as this," Fay said.

"We've never seen anything like it in Calgary, and one can't help but look at the case and consider what we know so far and how strange this whole thing is." THE CANADIAN PRESS

Reclassification would remove Ottawa's legal obligation to protect the animal's habitat

In the midst of the heated debate over oil tankers off the coast of British Columbia, the federal environment minister has proposed improving the status of North Pacific humpback whales from threatened to "special concern."

The whales have played a starring role in the campaign against oil pipelines and opponents accused the federal government Tuesday of removing a hurdle to the proposed multibillion-dollar Northern Gateway pipeline.

"What we're seeing is that the government is stripping the humpbacks of legal protection at the very time that the Enbridge pipeline and tankers project is posing a

But the Committee on the Status of Endangered Wildlife in Canada, or COSEWIC, an independent group of scientists responsible for assessments, first recommended the improvement in status three years ago.

A federal official said the group was even asked to reconsider, to ensure the science was sound. Last fall, the recommendation again was to make the change.

Unhappy meal. Iconic burger chain shows a decline in sales after a decade of growth

McDonald's said sales at established U.S. locations fell 1.7 per cent in the first three months of 2014. GETTY IMAGES

McDonald's is fighting to hold on to customers in the U.S.

The world's biggest hamburger chain said sales at established U.S. locations fell 1.7 per cent in the first three months of the year as guest counts declined. After a decade of consistent growth, sales also declined last year as McDonald's struggled to roll out an array of new menu items and fend off competitors.

CEO Don Thompson said in a call with analysts and investors Tuesday that the company is working to improve its operations and marketing in key regions, including the U.S.

"It's important to underscore it will take time for consumers to notice the changes and reward us with increased visits," he said.

The disappointing performance in the U.S. reflects the struggles McDonald's is facing as people flock to chains that position themselves as higher-quality alternatives. Thompson has noted that people with more spending money increasingly seem to be heading to such chains and that McDonald's needs to focus on underscoring value for its more cash-strapped customers. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Waffle tacos no match for McMuffins?

Without specifying names, McDonald's CEO Don Thompson said during a conference call Tuesday that the company hasn't seen any impact from the "most recent competitor" in the breakfast space. In apparent references to Subway and Taco Bell, he also noted that McDonald's seems to face new rivals every year, whether they're "sandwich shops or taco shops."

The comments come after Taco Bell's launch of its national breakfast menu late last month, which generated great fanfare because of the chain's TV ads featuring real-life Ronald McDonalds. But Taco Bell's lineup is still fairly limited compared with McDonald's. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Google challenging non-profits for ideas that kick some Glass

Google has issued a challenge: On Tuesday, the tech giant asked U.S. non-profit groups to propose ideas for how to use the web-connected eyewear Google Glass in their work. Five charities that propose the best ideas by May 20 will get a free pair of the glasses, a trip to Google for training and a $25,000 grant to help make their project a reality. JEFF CHIU/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS FILE

NADbank. Metro Ottawa continues to grow: Study

More Ottawans than ever are reading Metro each week, according to the latest newspaper readership study.

Metro is now the second most read newspaper in the city each week, ahead of the Ottawa Sun by 20,000 readers, according to the 2013 NADbank readership study.

Daily, 83,000 people read Metro Ottawa as a way to stay connected and informed about their city and the world.

"While the daily readership numbers were down for all newspapers in the Ottawa market, I am pleased to see Metro has closed the gap with the declining Ottawa Sun," said Greg Lutes, Vice President and Group Publisher, Metro

Eastern Canada. "Metro Ottawa now reaches more adults 18 to 49 than any other newspaper in the market."

Nationally, the research found that Metro continues to be popular with readers in Canada's largest cities and across various platforms, including print, digital paper, website and news app.

"Metro Canada increased readership on a weekly basis by three per cent to more than 4 million readers — a first for us — which demonstrates how our unique content packages resonate against Metro-politans, our target market," said Bill McDonald, President of Metro English Canada.

ANOTHER TYPE OF FOODIE WEIGHS IN

There are foodies, those uncompromising gourmets who have "an ardent or refined interest in food and alcoholic beverages," according to the dictionary.

Then there are the rest of us, who also have an ardent interest in food and alcoholic beverages, but there's nothing refined about it.

This column is for you. Business Insider has done one of those unscientific readers' choice surveys and on the strength of 2,200 responses, has determined the Best Fast Food in America. We can take that to include the rest of North America, because most of these epicurean delights do not require a run to the border.

They may require a run to the bathroom, if you insist on testing the winners, but that's another story.

So, apart from the fact that Tim Hortons barely makes the list, the rest of it is as commonplace in Canada as potholes in springtime.

What's really great about this is that everyone can play. In fact, participating is probably as impossible to resist as McDonald's fries.

The No. 1 burger is Wendy's with its characteristic square, never-frozen patty. I don't know about you, but to me a square patty ain't natural. Nonetheless, Dave's Hot 'N Juicy outdistanced the Burger King Whopper and McDonald's Big Mac by a healthy margin (34 per cent to 26 per cent and 24 per cent, respectively). Or should I say unhealthy?

Best pizza honours go to Papa John's, who squeaked by Pizza Hut and Domino's (34 per cent to 31 per cent and 29 per cent). Little Caesars was a distant fourth. Whatever. Does it get there in under half an hour?

No surprise here: McDonald's had the best fries by a wide margin (57 per cent), which roughly equals the percentage of North Americans raised on them from infancy.

Best fried chicken is KFC at 36 per cent. I haven't ordered a bucket for 20 years, but that doesn't stop me from going, "Maybe I should just stop and get a bucket" every time I go past the local Colonel's dispensary, which is just about every day. This stuff gets into your blood ... in more ways than one.

Subway is a double winner, with best sub (37 per cent) and healthiest choice (also 37 per cent), which is hardly a distinction considering the competition. About the only thing you can order at a fast food joint that's actually good for you is a glass of water.

Finally, there's coffee, the universal solvent. At 49 per cent, Starbucks wins hands down. The next closest was Dunkin' Donuts at 27 per cent. This is the only place on the poll where Tim Hortons appeared, with eight per cent, just behind McDonald's. Coffee seems like the last thing you'd order at McDonald's, but despite (or perhaps because of) those expectations, it's never as bad as you think.

And that's pretty much the last word. Or maybe five little last words: "You want fries with that?"

Bee my pollinator

Bamboo bundles are used here to create bee tunnels for nesting that hang in a magnolia tree near Langley, Wash. DEAN FOSDICK/THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Depleting numbers threaten food supply

Bees are pulling a disappearing act. Honeybees are vanishing from their hives. Bumblebee numbers have crashed so radically that some species are believed extinct. Even native solitary bees are in decline. Food supplies dependent upon pollinators are threatened.

There is no single explanation for what is causing the pollinator losses, said Matt O'Neal, an associate professor of entomology at Iowa State University. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Quoted

"Common species are disappearing at a dramatic rate ... I worry in particular about pollinator species with limited ranges and that have unique habitat requirements that are being threatened. A lot of species are dropping out of the landscape."

Mace Vaughan, pollinator program director with The Xerces Society for Invertebrate Conservation in Portland, Ore.

How gardeners can help

- Plant flowers and create green spaces, especially in urban areas. Leave patches of bare soil, rocks and brush piles for use by ground-dwelling native bees.
- Install bee hotels around the yard by drilling holes in wood blocks and creating bamboo bundles.
- Eliminate or change pesticide usage.

When parachuting on skis gets tiring

metronews.ca

On the same day I learned about the existence of an adrenaline-junkie hobby called speed riding — which is pretty much hurtling through the air while attached to a small parachute and a pair of skis — I also learned that it's not nearly adrenalized enough for one rider.

So what does your average daredevil do when the passion for boring, bland and familiar speed riding is extinguished. Why, you speed ride/grind your way down a chairlift cable. Naturally.

Turning up the cheat on trysts

Cautionary tales.

From 1960's 'dirty' rendezvous at The Apartment to a Fatal Attraction cooking your rabbit, infidelity boils over on film

IN FOCUS

Richard Crouse

scene@metronews.ca

In the new movie The Other Woman, Mark King (Game of Thrones's Nikolaj Coster-Waldau) tries to push infidelity to Tiger Woodsian heights by cheating on his wife (Leslie Mann) with multiple mistresses, including Carly and Amber (Cameron Diaz and Kate Upton). "We got played by the same guy," says Carly.

"Getting played" in Hollywood movies dates back further than the invention of the Ashley Madison website.

In 1960, the Jack Lemmon movie The Apartment tackled the subject of adultery. The film, about a lonely insurance company lackey who allows his bosses to use his apartment as a trysting spot in hopes that they will promote him, was a big hit, but also a controversial one. The Saturday Review called it "a dirty fairy tale" and co-star Fred McMurray says a woman on the street hit him with her purse, taking him to task for making "a dirty, filthy movie."

In 2005's Derailed, Clive Owen stars as a married man who hooks up with Lucinda (Jennifer Aniston) after meeting her on a commuter train. In a hormone-induced rush, they decide to consummate their illicit affair at a seedy hotel, only to be interrupted by a burglar who robs them and sexually assaults Lucinda. Things spiral out of control as the robber blackmails the couple and seems to have an unquenchable thirst for Owen's money.

Derailed is a cautionary tale about staying faithful to your spouse and never, ever renting rooms in sleazy hotels. Part Fatal Attraction, part Hitchcock thriller, the movie stays on track through the set-up of the story, but as soon as the going gets rough the story, well ... derails.

The most famous infidelity movie has to be 1987's Fatal Attraction. It begins with Michael "I'm a married man!" Douglas having a fling with Glenn "I'm not gonna be ignored!" Close. When he tries to break off their affair, she becomes a lesson in why not to cheat on your wife.

The film was a sensation on release, inspiring a number of imitators including The Crush, Single White Female and a spoof called Fatal Instinct, and its most famous clip, the rabbit boiling on the stove, even inspired a phrase in the Urban Dictionary. According to the website, cook your rabbit "refers to the moment when someone goes over the edge in their obsession with another person."

New show's doc has her own medical drama

Physician heal thyself.

Brilliant bipolar brain doctor battles effects of skipping her meds in new Black Box series

ABC's brainy new medical drama Black Box does a neat trick: It dares viewers to imagine for themselves the cost-benefit ratio of addiction, and does it without taking a firm stand.

It does it in the person of lovely, top-of-her-field Dr. Catherine Black, known as "the Marco Polo of the brain," who helps patients navigate a range of neurological disorders.

She also secretly wrestles with one of her own: She's bipolar.

Meanwhile, she's addicted to the mind-expanding, sometimes rapturous, but ultimately dangerous effects of skipping the meds that keep her "normalized," and letting her condition run full tilt.

"This show is not a generic examination of bipolarity — not at all," says series

Kelly Reilly in a scene from the medical drama Black Box, premiering Thursday at 10 p.m. EDT on ABC. PATRICK HARBRON/ABC star Kelly Reilly. "This is about one woman who is an addict to her disease. The disease is treatable. But it calls for a lifetime of commitment and rearranging medications to see what works and what doesn't work, and fighting the battle of deciding whether or not you want to take them."

Premiering Thursday at 10 p.m. EDT on ABC, Black Box pulls a 180 on the plague of addiction: Catherine Black must Just Say Yes to the drugs that will keep this wild child tamed. Yet sometimes she just can't. Or won't.

She is played by the English-born Reilly, who costarred with Denzel Washington in the film Flight, appeared in the two Sherlock Holmes films headlined by

Not just a show about illness

"The series has an addiction metaphor and the high does provide a gift."

Amy Holden Jones, creator of the new series, Black Box, whose lead character is a bipolar doctor struggling with managing her illness.

Robert Downey Jr., and starred in Above Suspicion, a British TV crime drama.

One recent day on Stage B at New York's Silvercup Studios, Reilly met with a reporter in her character's office in the tony Neuroscience Research and Treatment Center, a.k.a. The Cube, where Black and her colleagues probe the brain's mysteries.

The show also stars Terry Kinney as the NRTC chief of staff, Ditch Davey as a womanizing neurosurgeon on the team, David Ajala as Catherine's restaurateur boyfriend and Vanessa Redgrave as Catherine's shrink.

"This is not a life that's ever going to be straight and narrow for Catherine," says Reilly. "It's always going to be a bit wobbly: Is she gonna go off crazy again, or is she going to try to toe the line? She's a rule-breaker by nature who takes risks. But I think she longs for what normal might feel like."

The series was created by Amy Holden Jones, whose credits include the films Mystic Pizza and Indecent Proposal.

And she comes to Black Box well prepared, having a girl been "home-schooled in bipolar," as she puts it: Her father was a practising physician until he was 70 despite being manic-depressive and suffering periodic breakdowns.

"There are highly functional bipolar people," Jones says, and the condition is more common than is generally suspected.

"You may think your only experience of it is on Homeland," she says, referring to the Showtime thriller whose CIA heroine suffers notably from bipolar disorder. "But that's probably not the case." You may know someone who's bipolar and keeping it private, she says. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Who's the unfairest of them all? Ice road trucker plunders Snow White

As reality star misbehaviour goes, the Duck Dynasty crew are starting to look pretty good about now. At least they leave prostitutes where they found them.

Ice Road Truckers star Tim Zickuhr has no such social graces. According to TMZ, Zickuhr has been charged with an array of crimes after allegedly kidnapping and imprisoning a Las Vegas prostitute named Snow White. Snow White told police that Zickuhr gave her his debit card and told her to withdraw her fee. He then claimed she'd taken out more than agreed. When they met to work out their financial dispute, Snow White says Zickuhr tied her up with backpack straps, locked her in a closet, and punched her and poured cold water on her. Zickuhr then told her to call someone who could bring him the money, but she instead called a police officer.

When the police officer arrived, Zickuhr apparently confessed the whole thing. As a final stroke of elegance, he forced Snow White to exit his apartment through a second story window. Zickuhr was arrested and charged with first-degree kidnapping, extortion, and coercion.

"It's not going to happen," she tells David Letterman during an interview. "There's six Friends, and I've been trying to put a cast dinner together for 10 years. It doesn't happen."

OUR TAKE ON THE WORLD OF CELEBRITIES

The Word

Jay-Z holds Kim and Kanye's wedding at Bey

MELINDA TAUB
Metro World News

What could go wrong with Kim and Kanye's wedding? They both adore big splashy events, they seem really in love, and they have enough money that no one ever needs to end up sobbing in a strip mall parking lot because they can only afford pink hydrangeas, not fuchsia ones. (I was a bridesmaid a bunch of times.) However, there are some headaches of wedding planning that no amount of money can eliminate, such as guest list drama. Case in point: Will Beyoncé and Jay-Z show up for the ceremony?

Rumour has it that Jay and Bey are planning to skip the nuptials, which will take place in France. According to the Daily Mail, they don't intend it as a snub — they just have no interest in appearing on Keeping Up With the Kardashians, and cameras will be unavoidable (which, given that the show is Kim's whole raison d'être, does sound a little like a snub).

Jay-Z reportedly plans to make it up to his old pal Kanye in a big way: Since he won't be at the ceremony, not only is he planning a bachelor party for the ages, but he also plans to spend more than $100,000 to rent a yacht for the couple's honeymoon.

Good plan, guys. I have experience with this sort of thing. When my great-aunt couldn't make it to my bat mitzvah she sent me a $20 savings bond, which is sort of the same.

Uma Thurman GETTY IMAGES

Uma ... Arki. Arki ... Uma. Have you kids met each other?

Uma Thurman has reportedly called off her engagement to multimillionaire hedge fund boss Arki Busson, the second time she has done so since the couple began dating in 2007, according to the Daily Mail. "Uma and Arki were due to attend a gala together on April 8, but Uma showed up without her engagement ring or her fiancé. Arki was scheduled to attend, and it seemed clear there was only one reason why he didn't show — because he and Uma are no longer an item," a source says, while another adds, "Uma lives in New York while Arki lives in London. He has been out and about without Uma since October when he went to a Halloween party alone. They have been at one or two events together, like Harvey Weinstein's pre-BAFTA party in February, but on that occasion they looked miserable."

While standing on your balcony at the San Juan Marriott Resort staring out at the vast Atlantic, you'll find it hard not to be enchanted, romanced and lulled by the ocean's heartbeat.

The crash of surf on sand is hypnotizing.

The Marriott in San Juan offers guests a prestigious beachfront address in the bustling Condado neighbourhood where bronzed bombshells can be found sprawled across golden sand or lazing on lounge chairs by one of the hotel's two turquoise pools.

And while year-round sun and sandy beaches are understandably the biggest draw, you'll find plenty of opportunity for an authentic Puerto Rican adventure via a long list of excursions available at the hotel's always-bustling concierge desk.

Looking to treat yourself? Shopaholics are spoiled for choice as the hotel is located on tree-lined Avenida Ashford, a hip strip that Gucci, Louis Vuitton and Cartier all like to call home.

After pounding the pavement, relax at Ocean Club Spa where a selection of leave the pool?

Your best bet is a piña-colada-sloshed lunch at La Isla Beach Bar where crispy coconut shrimp and smoky chicken wings offer serious satiation.

If you're in town on the weekend, be sure to stop by the Red Coral Lounge at night for "Salsa and Sushi," where each evening the kitchen serves up fusion sushi offerings (traditional churrasco, creamy avocado, sweet plantain) while a live band adds a festive energy to the dance floor.

Salsa yourself silly, then quench your thirst while celebrating local flavours with an ice cold bottle of Medalla Light or a classic mojito spiked with Bacardi Oakheart.

Looking to explore Puerto Rico's top attractions?

Start your adventure with a rum-filled afternoon at Casa Bacardi, aptly titled The Cathedral of Rum.

It feels a bit like 'Disney Does a Distillery,' as guests are whisked around the property on Bacardi-bat-embossed limo golf carts.

Discover the beauty of ancient architecture and vibrant natural wonders while first strolling back in time through Spanish colonial Old San Juan.

Then, finish off your trip with a jungle mountain hike of El Yunque Rainforest where there are plenty of tranquil waterfalls and panoramic coastal views that offer perfect photo ops.

Summer trip. Just a little south and east of Calgary, try your hand at being a dinosaur bone hunter

ON THE MOVE

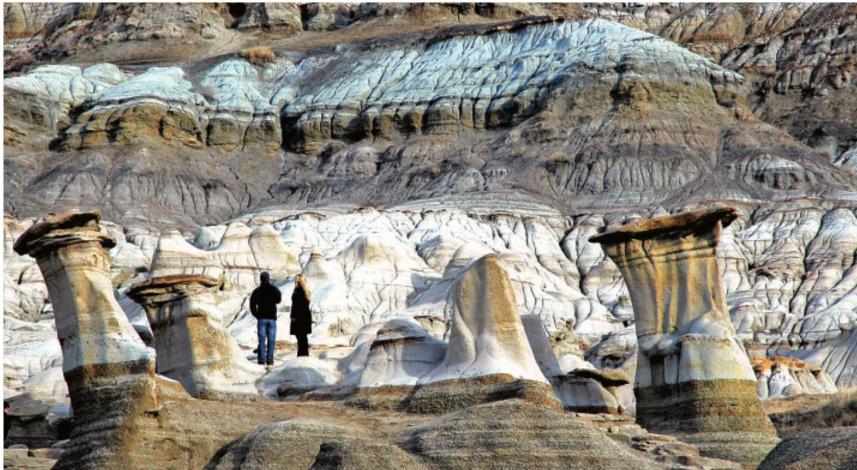

Loren Christie
lifem@metronews.ca

Heading to Alberta this summer?

The Rockies are amazing, but don't skip the Canadian Badlands. This large area east and southeast of Calgary offers a variety of sites and activities that are too good to be missed.

Dinosaur Provincial Park is a UNESCO world heritage site that is home to 40 species of dinosaurs.

Surrounded by hoodoos and unearthly scenery, go on a guided tour or be part of a dig. Would-be paleontologists are given a toolkit that includes an awl, a paintbrush, a hammer, and a dental pick

What Rockies? With the stunning views in Alberta's badlands, you might not make it to the mountains. ISTOCK for the more delicate work.

I barely had my hands dirty last summer at Bone Bed 30 before I realized I was staring at actual fossilized dinosaur bones.

It is impossible not to find a fossil, whether it's a small piece of tendon or the edge of giant femur; the natural history is everywhere.

Remember as part of your planning that Dinosaur Provincial Park and the better-known Royal Tyrrell Museum are not the same place and are actually two hours' drive apart. Pre-book your tour or dig in advance.

If arts and crafts are more your speed, head to Medicine Hat and check out the former Medalta clay factory, now a national historic district.

The iconic beehive kilns of the former factory can still be toured. A highlight is the surprisingly cool museum, which chronicles the history of the factory.

My favourite displays are the china collection used by Canadian Pacific hotels during the golden age of travel and the line of dinnerware created for Ethiopian Emperor Haile Selassie. The Yuill Family Gallery showcases rotating exhibits, including creations from Medalta's artist in residence program.

The town of Elkwater is the entry point into Cypress Hills Interprovincial Park. Straddling the border of Alberta and Saskatchewan, it is the only interprovincial park in Canada.

In addition to the expected variety of hiking trails, the park includes Elkwater Lake, which provides a perfect spot for all varieties of water sports.

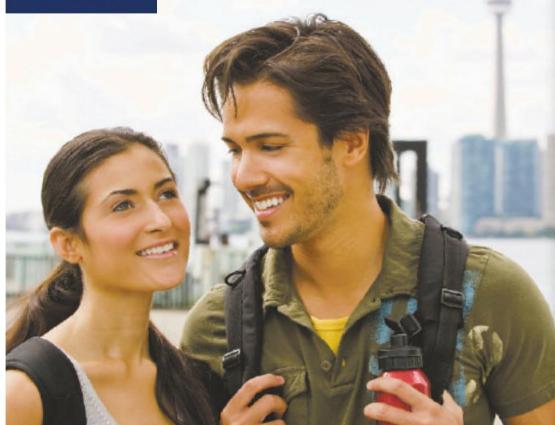

I got a lesson on canoeing while I was there from the park staff. Camp or spend the night at a lodge in Elkwater if sleeping on the ground is not your thing. The park is also one of a growing number of places across the country that has a Dark Sky Preserve.

For stargazers out there, the lack of light pollution makes for some amazing night sky viewing.

Five things to know about pursuing work in the insurance industry

GREAVES
TalentEgg.ca

Before you start a career, it's important to find out all the key details you can about the field you're interested in.

While you'll learn a lot hands-on, a little bit of research can go a long way in preparing you for the perks and challenges of a particular career. The following five attributes of the insurance industry can help you get started.

It's inclusive

One of the great things about pursuing a career in the insurance industry is that you don't have to have a specific educational background or set of work experiences.

While there are many insurance diploma programs, certifications and specializations that can offer you a distinct advantage, you can hatch a great career in insurance without necessarily having a background in it.

Many top insurance companies assess potential hires based on their knowledge, skills and previous work experience as they relate to current needs. Since insurance is involved in so many different aspects of our lives, that previous knowledge and experience can come from many different areas: cars,

The insurance industry may conjure up images of being confined to a cubicle, but many positions in the field will see you actively engaged in your tasks. iSTOCK business, medicine, the law and infrastructure are all excellent examples.

Employers in insurance recognize that some additional training and education is required to ensure you can excel in your insurance career and to round out your knowledge. Often, the cost for this training will be picked up by your employer.

Insurance is also inclusive from a demographic perspective, with 63 per cent of industry professionals being women, and 14 per cent identifying as a visible minority compared with 17 per cent in the general Canadian labour market.

It's exciting

Many people see working in insurance as a nine-to-five desk job that involves working in isolation.

Nothing could be further from the truth. While many roles do have an element of independence, an insurance career often calls for frequent client interaction, teamwork, networking and professional stewardship.

These activities not only provide variety, they also provide a well-rounded set of experiences that can help you find a role or set of responsibilities that match how you like to work.

The roles are highly varied

Besides a range of different responsibilities, opportunities for career specialization abound in insurance.

Whether you are a number cruncher, like working with people, can spot trouble before it happens, or enjoy research and analysis, there is likely a role for you.

Job opportunities include: claims representative, underwriter, insurance adviser and more. These positions include tasks such as developing strategies and putting policies into place for your clients, understanding the goals and risk tolerance of your clients and being an independent and collaborative worker to meet personal and team goals.

You can specialize in insurance

There are lots of college and university programs, specializations, designations, and certifications out there to give your education an edge in the insurance field, or specialize your skills to a particular insurance career path.

The same goes for specializing within the industry; as

Learn and grow

Since the insurance industry welcomes candidates from a diverse range of backgrounds, there's a heavy emphasis on training and development, both in terms of onboarding and continual learning.

If you're in the midst of applying to insurance jobs or are looking into roles for down the road, it's important to know which skills your potential employers are seeking during the application process.

Here are some of the most sought-after skills you'll need for success in your insurance career.

Though there may be times when you are working independently in your insurance position, you will ultimately be working as part of a team to achieve organization-wide objectives. Social skills are key. iSTOCK

When applying for an insurance role, be sure to showcase any experiences, courses, or volunteer work that have developed your communication skills and be sure to highlight them in your application.

Customer service

As an insurance professional, you will be managing multiple relationships and priorities. Ensuring that you are understanding your customers' needs, professionalism,

Teamwork

Working collaboratively to identify new business opportunities, generate a solution to a problem or emerging issue, or develop a strategy to manage a potential risk effectively are just a few examples of ways you may find yourself working with your colleagues in the insurance industry.

Think about school projects, jobs you have had, committees you were a part of or extracurricular activities that had you as a part of a team (for example: band, sports teams, debate clubs, etc.).

How did you go about achieving success? What role did you play? How did you capitalize on each other's strengths? Overcome challenges?

Professionalism

Insurance is all about peace of mind.

It is important that those working in the sector are seen as the professionals they are.

Demonstrating due diligence, paying attention to detail, wearing appropriate business attire, maintaining ethical standards and confidentiality, staying up-to-date on current trends and products and exercising sound judgment are all qualities that make up the package of the professional people are entrusting to help them to protect the things they hold most dear.

SHOP FOR THE BEST PERKS

The good news for consumers is that the travel rewards industry is very competitive today and, as a result, banks and credit card companies have upped their travel programs and offerings to try to attract more cardholders, says Patrick Sojka, founder of Rewards Canada, an organization that tracks the various cards.

"The biggest trend on the credit card side is the waiving of the first year's annual fee," Sojka says. "So, basically, it's a free trial."

SHUTTERSTOCK

"If you keep the card after one year you will likely be charged the annual fee. However, with the way things are, you may be able to negotiate for a longer free period."

On the credit card side, the big trend is the addition of more benefits.

"Most cards are maxed out on what they can offer in terms of rewards and earning points for air miles," Sojka says. "But look for fabulous travel benefits."

Here is a quick list of what to look for:

- Travel perks such as airport lounge access and concierge services.
- A wide range of insurance benefits including travel emergency medical, trip interruption and cancellation, lost luggage, rental car collision/loss damage and hotel burglary insurance.
- Less blackout periods when you book travel on points. "We know that Canadians want to earn points faster and redeem them often without the aggravation of blackout periods and high fees," says Jennifer Douglas, Scotiabank vice-president of credit cards.
- Different ways to redeem points. Scotiabank experts also point to additional benefits such as gift cards, merchandise, charities and investment and credits to redeem from.
- Exclusive hotel programs. Some cards partner with hotels to offer room upgrades and dining and beverage credits. But the more benefits like this, the higher the annual fee in general.
- No redemption deadlines.

SHUTTERSTOCK

FINDING THE BEST VALUE

If you are like most Canadians, you carry a stack of loyalty cards in your wallet. You might have an Air Miles, a Shoppers Optimum, and maybe a Cineplex Scene card. Perhaps a wad of that funny Canadian Tire money is stuffed in there, too.

Loyalty programs have edged into almost every industry, from banking and travel, to entertainment and retail. Repeat card users earn points, discounts and other perks

The Shoppers Drug Mart Optimum card is among the most popular. Some 10 million Canadians carry this card, says Tammy Smitham, vice-president, communications.

Another card — Scene — is quickly gaining attention, too. Now with 5.6 million cardholders, the program is growing "beyond the expectations" of its co-partners, Cineplex and Scotiabank, says Shawn Bloom, Scene general manager.

The idea is to use financial incentives to get customers to build a shopping history with the same store. For example, with an Optimum card, you get 10 points for every dollar spent and can redeem these points on most of the 25,000 in-store products, Smitham says.

With a Scene card, you get 10 per cent off concession purchases and off admission on Tuesdays, and collect 100 points for admission to every adult movie.

"So every 10th movie will be free; it's very good value," Bloom says.

At Canadian Tire, the country's oldest loyalty plan, you get 40 cents in "money" for every $100 spent. Now customers can get their "money" electronically as well as in paper form, giving them "the best of both worlds," says Shawn Stewart, associate vice-president, loyalty.

Increasingly, businesses are teaming up to extend card savings. You can now use Optimum points on fashion and decor items at the Beyond The Rack online store, Smitham says. Scene members can redeem points at Swiss Chalet, Harvey's and other restaurants, and, through the current promotional program with Indigo, earn points by buying certain books that have been or will be made into a movie, Bloom says.

Banks are also getting into the loyalty action. The Royal Bank, for example, has partnered with Shoppers to offer an RBC Optimum MasterCard or debit card that can be used to collect points at retail outlets other than Shoppers across the country.

SHUTTERSTOCK

UNDERSTAND YOUR POINTS PROGRAM

When it comes to belonging to a loyalty program, knowing what you want to do with the points is one way to narrow down what's appropriate for you, says Patrick Sojka, founder of Rewards Canada.

Here are other considerations:

- Be clear about what you want to be rewarded with — air miles, cash back, or merchandise.
- Keep your shopping habits in mind and be strategic. What's most important is that you are loyal to programs so you accumulate points. Plus, "splitting points
- amongst several cards will delay the time it takes to redemption," Sojka says.
- Be sure you understand exactly how you earn and redeem points on cards including expiring policies for programs that issue miles or points.
- Keep in mind that the more flexible in terms of what the reward is, the lower the rewards rate will be in general.
- Get an Aeroplan or Air Miles card regardless, Sojka says. There are so many places where you can earn these points and so many options for redeeming them (travel, merchandise, gift cards).

FASTER REWARDS

SPRING CLEAN YOUR WALLET AND FIND THE PROGRAM THAT WORKS FOR YOU

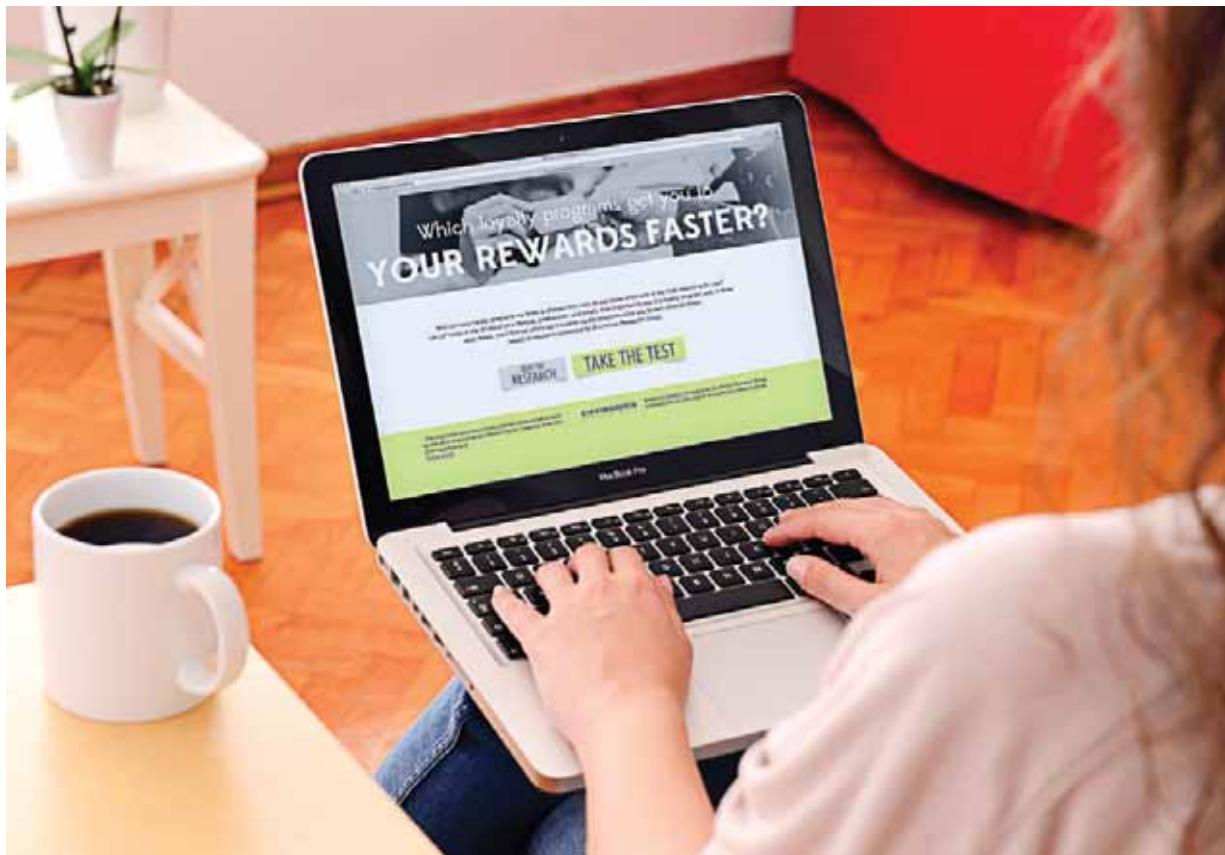

Regularly reassessing loyalty program membership makes sense beyond just reducing the plastic you carry. That's because choosing the right loyalty program for you could get you to the reward you want faster.

Selecting a program from the many options on the market has traditionally been the challenging part.

Luckily, there is a free online tool to help you assess available programs in a way that levels the playing field so you can research and more easily find the program that might have the shortest "time to reward" — compareloyaltyprograms.ca.

Starting with your end goal in mind, decide what reward for which you are looking. Whether you want to earn points or miles for flights, merchandise or cash back, each program offers its own set of advantages.

"Know yourself — and your goals," say Susan Misner and Laura McDonald, founders of Golden Girl Finance, a site offering financial education in a modern, engaging way to encourage everyone to play a more active role in their finances. "Loyalty programs can make up an important part of your overall finances so you'll be rewarded for all of the research you do looking into the right program. Just be smart about where you get your information from — using a tool, such as compareloyaltyprograms.ca, gives you an apples-to-apples look at the most popular programs."

With all of the information out there, it can still be hard to narrow down which programs may be right for you. Focusing on dividend (i.e., how much a point or mile is worth) may not be the best way to decide which loyalty program can help you get to your rewards sooner. CompareLoyaltyPrograms.ca is powered by research from Environics Research Group and features the top 23 loyalty programs and affiliated credit cards in Canada, including many offerings new to the market this year. By answering a few simple questions on desired rewards (flight, merchandise or cash back) and spending habits (such as the types of stores where you spend the most), the tool suggests programs that may get you to your chosen reward faster.

Once you know what reward you want, it is important to assess how, where and how much you spend each month to understand which programs might benefit you most.

"Spending habits and reward preferences are unique to each household, but comparative tools and resources may not be clear about how they compare different programs," say Misner and McDonald. "With CompareLoyaltyPrograms.ca, consumers can enter their own monthly spending figures to get an accurate assessment of programs based on their own individual personal spending patterns."

LOYALTY PROGRAMS SHOULD SUIT YOUR STYLE

Golden Girl Finance offer tips to help consumers discover their best loyalty program matches:

KNOW WHAT YOU WANT

The best place to start when it comes to assessing whether your current loyalty program is working for you — or deciding which one to sign up for — is what reward for which you are ultimately saving to redeem. Check out compareloyaltyprograms.ca to cross-compare the top loyalty programs in Canada.

THINK ABOUT WHERE YOU SHOP

Research by Environics Research Group has shown that, on average, double-dipping using a base program card matched with an affiliated credit card greatly reduces "time to reward," no matter the reward you are after. The research has also shown that coalition programs, where there are numerous partner stores to earn miles or points at provide faster time to flight rewards, on average.

STAY TUNED-IN TO YOUR PROGRAM

Some rewards programs do a great job of keeping members in the loop with program news via social media or flyers so they can plan their spending to take advantage of offers. Consider using a credit card at partner retailers for your chosen program (double-dipping) and streamlining earning into just one or two key programs.

DO YOUR HOMEWORK

The decision is up to you, so spend a bit of time researching to decide for yourself which program is the most rewarding. Be sure to watch out for high annual fees on associated credit cards that can overshadow the benefits of the loyalty program.

Commissioned by COLLOQUY, a LoyaltyOne Research Group, Environics Research Group developed a methodology and online comparison tool that allows consumers to determine which rewards programs get them to the rewards they want as quickly as possible, based on their individual shopping patterns, program features and attributes. COLLOQUY has also provided financial compensation to Golden Girl Finance for promotion of the research and online tool.

Manchester United

Moyes canned

Overwhelmed by the giant task of replacing Alex Ferguson, Britain's greatest ever manager, David Moyes was fired by Manchester United on Tuesday after losing the support of the club's American owners.

He lasted just 10 months.

Exactly a year after winning a record-extending 20th English championship, United dismissed Moyes during a meeting at its training ground in the morning. The news was released in a terse, two-line statement on the club's website — a far cry from the fanfare of Moyes' hiring last summer.

His future was placed in serious doubt, however, after Sunday's lacklustre 2-0 loss at Everton, which ensured that England's biggest club over the last two decades wouldn't be in next season's Champions League. THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Concordia's Smith ripe for CFL draft

Top prospects list out. After missing the fall and winter rankings, defensive lineman shoots up to No. 4 pick Quinn Smith's CFL draft stock is on the rise.

The Concordia Stingers defensive lineman was ranked fourth among the CFL scouting bureau's top-15 prospects for May's draft, after missing out on the fall and winter lists.

But the six-foot-two, 305-pound Toronto native raised eyebrows at last month's CFL combine, excelling on both sides of the ball. And that versatility will enhance his chances of being taken early in the draft. The Ottawa Redblacks hold the first pick overall.

"Obviously I felt I should've been on the first two but I'm very happy that my hard work paid off to be quite high on the new list," Smith said during a CFL conference call Tuesday.

Once again Laurent Du-vernay-Tardif, McGill's highly rated offensive lineman, topped the rankings. But the six-foot-five medical student is projected as a mid-round NFL draft pick. Where he is taken by an NFL club will directly affect when he's selected in the CFL draft.

David Foucault, Montreal's 300-pound offensive tackle, moved up a spot into No. 2, with Laval offensive lineman Pierre Lavertu dropping to No. 3. St. Francis receiver Devon Bailey also dropped one position behind Smith into No. 5. Manitoba defensive tackle Evan Gill remained at No. 6, ahead of Western defensive lineman Dylan Ainsworth. Manitoba running back Anthony Coombs moved up to No. 8, ahead of Simon Fraser offensive lineman Matthias Goosen and Queen's defensive back Andrew Lue.

Rounding out the top-15 were Laval defensive back Adam Thibault, Simon Fraser linebacker Casey Chin, Montreal defensive lineman David Menard and defensive back Antoine Pruneau, and Western linebacker Beau Landry.

• Transmissions. Seven-speed automated manual with paddle-shift controls.

Market position

The GLA, based on the CLA sedan, is an example of high-end automakers introducing lower-priced products. The trick is to do it without alienating traditional buyers who seek the exclusivity of a luxury brand.

Points

- Rounder styling separates GLA from the larger GLK
- Base four-cylinder engine generates decent power, but performance AMG version blows it away
- Seems as though the manual transmission era is over at Mercedes-Benz
- Attractive base price could rapidly escalate unless option list is avoided
- Expect this model to rival the CLA sedan in popularity.

Without the sloping roof of the CLA, the GLA is 20 centimetres shorter. The hatch opening therefore accommodates bulkier — not longer — items.

Safety

Review. How a car that could have been a compromise actually ended up being anything but

MALCOLM GUNN

Mercedes-Benz traditionally caters to its financially comfortable clientele with some deliciously desirable machinery. But in North America, the automaker is making an equally strong pitch to a younger, less affluent audience by introducing the 2015 GLA wagon. It's a companion model to the coupe-like 2014 CLA sedan that resides at the lower-priced and fuel-frugal end of the market.

Mercedes-Benz isn't alone here. Other premium-oriented brands, notably Audi and BMW, are launching similarly sized, or even smaller cars. By doing so, they are improving their respective corporate average fuel economies (CAFE) in accordance with the U.S. government regs. The GLA, which launches in Canada this fall, gives entry-level Mercedes-Benz shoppers a clear choice of vehicles that actually compromise little in the way of power and features.

Those who prefer the smooth look of the CLA sedan can choose that route, while the more practically minded can opt for the sport-wagon look and added carrying capacity of the GLA. Each car has its pluses and minuses, but the form-over-function CLA will ultimately be sharing a big slice of the econo-luxury podium with the GLA.

The GLA's dash layout is a carbon copy of what you'll find in the CLA sedan. The dashtop screen doesn't retract and there's no console shift lever.

Given their commonality, it makes sense that the GLA and CLA share the same powertrains. The GLA250 4MATIC runs with a turbocharged 2.0-litre four-cylinder that generates 208 horsepower and 258 pound-feet of torque. Step up to the GLA45 AMG (4MATIC) and those values increase to 355/332. Although the displacements are equal, the AMG engine block has been strengthened and its higher output turbocharger produces nearly twice the boost of the GLA250's.

Both powerplants use a seven-speed automated manual transmission with paddle shifters that produces quicker upshifts and downshifts than a traditional automatic/torque converter combo.

Ultimately, the GLA-Class should be as enticing as the CLA, but should hold greater appeal for budget-minded buyers wanting more practical family transportation along with a three-pointed star affixed to the grille.

Induction charging.

New system uses an electromagnetic field to transfer energy from the base station to the vehicle's battery

JIL MCINTOSH

It's possible today to charge your phone or your electric toothbrush without directly plugging it into the wall, but how about a car? It could happen one day, thanks to an experimental project by Volvo that could potentially eliminate the cords on electric vehicles.

"You don't have to get the charging cable from the car and connect it to the grid," says Crister Lunde, project leader for power electronics and electric propulsion systems at Volvo Car Corporation. "You just park in the right position, and it starts charging."

Called induction charging, the system uses an electromagnetic field to transfer energy. It requires two induction coils, one of them located in a base station and the other in the vehicle. The coil in the charging base creates an alternating electromagnetic field, while the coil in the car picks up that power and converts it back to electrical energy to charge the vehicle's battery.

Lunde says the wireless system's charging time will essentially be the same as plugging the car in, but the real benefit is in the convenience. The charging

Energy transfer

"You don't have to get the charging cable from the car and connect it to the grid. You just park in the right position, and it starts charging."

Crister Lunde, project leader for power electronics and electric propulsion systems at Volvo Car Corporation

Facts and tips

- Batteries use direct current (DC), while household current is alternating current (AC), and the system uses a converter to change AC to DC for charging.
- Wireless charging could also be used for plug-in hybrids and extended-range vehicles, which plug in but also use gasoline engines for longer driving periods.
- The wireless system is self-contained and can be safely used on rainy days.

pad eliminates opening the trunk, getting the cord out, and plugging in both ends. The wireless system is an even better option if it's raining or the cord is dirty from being on the ground, he says.

One of the issues the engineers are still working on is creating a failsafe object detection system. "If something like a cat or a small child crawled under the car, the system must close down," Lunde says. "It will stop operating until you remove them. They're still working with this, and it's still under development."

The system also needs to warn the driver if there are any metallic objects lying on the charging pad, which could interfere with the electromagnetic field.

Volvo isn't the only company working on inductive charging, which presents another issue. While each automaker would probably like to have a proprietary system, all electric cars will need to work with every wireless base. This would enable the eventual construction of a viable infrastructure of public charging systems, just as every gasoline pump nozzle fits every car's filler neck.

"It's important for the future that there should be standards," Lunde says. "The chargers will have to be the same. We want a free transfer that everyone can use for public charging."

Horoscopes

Aries

March 21 - April 20

You know what it is that you want so now it's just about how you are going to get it. If your plans are being held back by a lack of cash, what happens today and tomorrow will help. But ultimately, the effort must come from you.

Taurus

April 21 - May 21

Mercury joins the Sun in your sign today and your mood will be better. The next three weeks are potentially the best of the year for you, so take advantage of the opportunities that come your way.

Gemini

May 22 - June 21

Your feelings may be a bit fragile over the next 24 hours, so steer clear of people who are rude. Some days it is necessary to restrict yourself to your company.

Cancer

June 22 - July 23

Don't try to solve others' problems by yourself. Be generous, especially with time and sympathy, but recognize that the only way friends will solve their issues is by looking for them themselves.

Leo

July 24 - Aug. 23

Mercury, planet of the mind, crosses the career angle of your chart today, which means you will no longer be able to kid yourself about what is and is not possible.

Virgo

Aug. 24 - Sept. 23

This is one of the best times of the year for you and it will get even better over the next few days as Mercury, your ruler, opens your mind to new possibilities.

Libra

Sept. 24 - Oct. 23

Whatever it is that you fear, you need to put a name to it because only then will you be able to face it and conquer it. Most likely you have been worrying for no good reason.

Scorpio

Oct. 24 - Nov. 22

It may feel as if you have no control over what is going on in your life but that simply isn't true. You have, however, allowed people to dictate to you what you can and cannot do. It's time to make it clear that enough is enough.

Sagittarius

Nov. 23 - Dec. 21

While everyone is running around and bumping into each other as if the end of the world is nigh, you will be the picture of tranquility. That may mean you have no idea what is going on but there are times when ignorance is OK.

Capricorn

Dec. 22 - Jan. 20

Yours may not be the most flexible sign but it will pay you to make an effort to adapt today. You have a great deal going for you at the moment but to make the most of it, be less set in your ways.

Aquarius

Jan. 21 - Feb. 19

You will learn something over the next 24 hours but if you are smart, you will keep it to yourself for now. What you find out about a situation could be beneficial.

Pisces

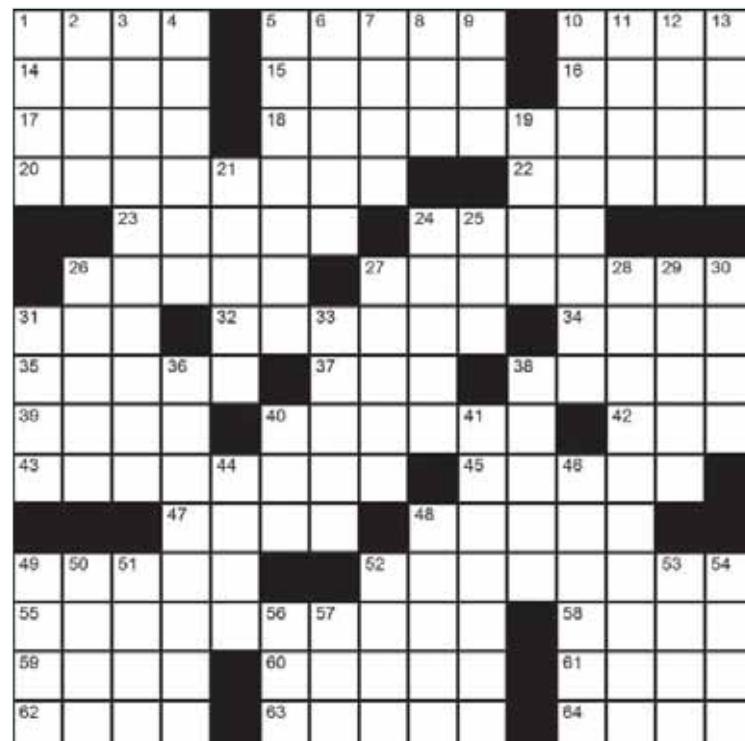

Feb. 20 - March 20

Sometimes it's good to get away from your duties and chores and lose yourself in activities you really enjoy. Such a time is now. SALLY BROMPTON
